

John Davison

Director

John has formal qualifications in Metallurgy, Corporate Governance, Business and Financial Management, together with an engineering trade background in Fitting and Machining.

John has over 30 years' experience in manufacturing. After gaining 10 years' experience in supplier quality assurance with General Motors Holden, he became quality manager for automotive parts manufacturer, Repco. In 1988 he moved into senior management, managing the Bathurst operation of Clyde Engineering.

John relocated to the NSW Central Coast in 1995, where he ventured into his own business in the building and construction industry, successfully managing a building material and hardware distribution centre, along with a contract commercial lining business, until 2007. After selling his business, John joined the Australian Industry Group as Business Adviser working on various Federal Government industry support programs.

John has an abiding passion for the Central Coast and is involved with several local not-for-profit organisations.
